CROSSWALK

This is in response to your request for a marked crosswalk across Anaheim Street at its intersection with Belle Porte Avenue.

A comprehensive traffic engineering study of this intersection has been completed. This study included field observations of traffic flow and intersectional visibility, inspection of the physical conditions and existing traffic controls, review of pedestrian volumes, and an analysis of collisions reported to the Police Department for the previous five years.

The results of the study indicate that the guidelines for justifying the installation of a marked crosswalk were not satisfied. Traffic counts revealed that pedestrian volumes crossing Anaheim Street at this intersection are low.

Under provisions of the California Vehicle Code, motorists must yield the right-of-way to pedestrians properly crossing the street at an intersection, whether or not a marked crosswalk is present.

Considering the aforementioned, the installation of a marked crosswalk at the intersection of Anaheim Street and Belle Porte Avenue cannot be justified at this time. Although we cannot approve your request, we appreciate your interest in traffic matters.

Sincerely,

CRYSTAL KILLIAN
Transportation Engineer
Southern District
